Rivers are the arteries of a country. Water flows through them, without which life would not be possible. People have always felt drawn to rivers. They have settled on their banks and built their cities there. That is why human life in cities pulsates along the banks of rivers.

Places near flowing water still attract people – even motor-home travellers: there is simply something special about standing on a pitch with a view of a river. There, you can sense freshness, constant renewal and life.

This camping guide lists 140 overnight motorhomes parking spaces near rivers in Germany. It also provides information on the facilities and services available to mobile holidaymakers at these sites.

The book also provides information about places of interest and their contact addresses. Equipped with this guide, you should always find a place to spend the night on one of Germany's beautiful rivers.
